TreeComp

TreeComp is a tool that helps to synchronize two folders and the files within. It is developed by Ditto Software Ltd and is available in the market for a reasonable price. You have a choice between two different versions: Gold and the free edition. The former can be acquired in standard and pro versions, the latter is available only in the free version. There is no direct preview of the program in the store, so you'll have to download and install it first. Once done with the installation, you can start using the program to synchronize the two folders you have selected. It has a clean user-interface and the scanning process is very fast. Once the scan is done, you will see a list of discovered files and folders that are not present in the original directory. The app may also copy the discovered files to the destination location and remove the files that can't be found there. There is also an option to create log files to keep track of all the changes performed to the selected folders. The bottom line is that TreeComp is a simple tool that can be useful if you have to synchronize two directories. Ditto Software: Ditto Software was founded in 2000 by Robert Walther.
